

Student Learning Outcomes:

By completion of this course, students should be able to:

1. Think critically about issues in human biology.
2. Describe essential biological structures and processes that occur at the molecular and cellular levels.
3. Describe the anatomy and physiology of major human organ systems.
4. Understand how malfunctions can cause disease.
5. Explain gene function and the role of genes in inheritance and evolution.